

Working with Councils, Boards and Commissions

Leverage collective strengths to effect positive change in your community

When: July 27, 2021

Where: Virtual

Do you work with elected or appointed governing bodies? Gain a clearer understanding of the pressures, legal constraints, and demands facing members of councils, boards, and commissions. Learn the structures and processes necessary in these governing bodies, and strategies for maintaining good communication and minimizing challenges that can arise in the staff/board relationship. Discover how you can help boards and commissions be more effective in their official capacities, and to make for a smoother, more productive organization. This class costs $225.

By the end of this class, you should be able to:

1. Have a basic understanding of government structures and the legislative process
2. Understand the open meetings law and where to find resources and information pertaining to the law
3. Understand and be able to use basic motions in parliamentary procedure
4. Understand the role of the public, members of the body, and staff/support
5. Utilize strategies to overcome barriers working with board, commission, and councils

Instructor: Lauren Kuhl (BA, University of Wisconsin – Stevens Point) has worked most of her career in a variety of government roles, currently as a Policy Analyst with the Dane County Board. Lauren is a Wisconsin Certified Public Manager.

Testimonials:

Register at: <https://localgovernment.extension.wisc.edu/cpm-public-courses>

UW-MADISON EXTENSION LOCAL GOVERNMENT EDUCATION

